A writing internship will help you achieve your goals, whether they involve graduate school or life in the professional world. You may choose from two internship courses:

- WR402, the 3-credit class available during fall semesters. WR402 requires 150 hours of work for the semester.
- WR403, the 1-credit class available year-round. WR402 requires 50 hours of work for the semester.

Many successful writing alumni had internships in their junior and senior years, and some were even hired right after graduation.

You may intern at organizations like The Baltimore Sun, the Enoch Pratt Free Library, or DoublePositive Online Marketing. Or you may find an organization on your own.

"Learning how to adjust your tone and write effectively across any genre makes you a better writer. A good internship will prepare you to do that.”

- Ryan Garvin, ‘13

“I have the tools I need to be able to engage in research and sales. It is just amazing how one experience can change my future prospects.”

- Karina Smolyuk, ‘16

“I’m thankful for having had this experience and having been pushed out of my comfort zone as I now have a stronger sense of myself and my limitations.”

- Ife Marian Okpali, ‘16

Writing Department

4501 N. Charles St.
Baltimore, MD 21210
Maryland Hall 043
http://www.loyola.edu/academic/writing

For more information, contact Dr. Allen Brizee, Writing Internship Coordinator: habrizee@loyola.edu
Common Writing Internship Questions

What are the prerequisites for the internship?
To take the writing internship courses, you must be a junior or senior writing major, writing minor, or interdisciplinary writing student.

What do I need to do to get an internship?
Complete the following documents and email them to Dr. Allen Brizee, the intern coordinator:
- Current résumé
- Professional cover letter
- Brief essay (300-600 words) explaining how your internship fits into your goals
- Three writing samples with short abstracts
- Graduation audit

Here is Dr. Brizee’s email address: habrizee@loyola.edu.

What will I do for my internship?
You will do the following:
- Complete tasks for your internship position
- Keep a work log
- Read the internship text
- Write a weekly writing prompt response
- Complete a mid-term self-evaluation
- Include your work in the course portfolio

What are the deadlines to apply?
WR402, the 3-credit fall internship: July 15
WR403, the 1-credit year-round option:
- Summer I: April 1
- Summer II: May 15
- Fall: July 15
- Spring: November 15

“I am grateful to have been able to intern at Bancroft Press, and I would recommend that other writing majors pursue internship experiences.”
- Jean Gillingham, ’16

Partial List of Organizations

Non-Profit Organizations
- ETC Baltimore entrepreneurial clearinghouse
- ABET Accreditation
- GEDCO/CARES
- The Annie E. Casey Foundation
- The Baltimore Symphony
- The Maryland Wineries Assoc.

Publications
- The Baltimore Sun
- Baltimore City Paper
- Baltimore Magazine
- Style magazine
- Catholic Review
- Smartish Pace magazine

Marketing and Advertising
- DoublePositive Marketing
- Media Two Advertising