Overview

1052 students\(^1\) participating in Messina during the Fall 2016 semester were invited to participate in a web survey to assess their first-year experience, including their participation in the Messina program at Loyola University Maryland during the fall semester. The survey was an adaptation of previously administered surveys developed in consultation with the Messina Advisory Board and was submitted for Institutional Review Board for approval (FWA00013527) before it was sent to students. Questions were designed to correspond to the four main areas of Messina learning outcomes – Discernment, Critical Understanding, Community and Integrated Learning (see Appendix A for complete list of Learning Outcomes). An added emphasis on the learning outcome of Critical Understanding was highlighted within the survey instrument.

The survey was conducted from December 1, 2016 – January 4, 2017. In total, 469 students began the survey and 377 students\(^2\) fully completed the survey. Data represents the following themes and identities:

- \(92 (24.47\%)\) respondents represented Self and Other, \(119 (31.65\%)\) respondents represented Stories We Tell, \(75 (19.95\%)\) respondents represented The Visionary, \(80 (21.28\%)\) respondents represented The Good Life. \(114 (30.32\%)\) respondents identified as men, \(262 (69.68\%)\) respondents identified as women.

Summary of Findings

The Fall 2016 survey had an emphasis of evaluating our Messina learning outcomes related to Critical Understanding. For questions related to the fall semester experience, students were asked to rank how often they engaged in or thought about a variety of personal, academic, and social activities during their first semester.\(^3\) Students also responded to a follow-up question regarding the level of importance each area was to them.\(^4\) A final question was asked to explore the level of influence participation in Messina had in relation to the area.\(^5\)

- An area that remained consistent in both Fall 2015 and this year’s survey is students continue to feel a strong amount of support in regard to becoming a part of the Loyola community, both within Messina and throughout their fall semester first-year experience. In opened ended responses, students credited members of their Messina working group as well as connections to peers through Messina as influencing the support they felt throughout the semester.
- \(43 (11.75\%)\) students indicated that Messina had no level of influence in providing support in regard to academic coursework. Conversely, \(13 (3.55\%)\) responded that they “Never” felt they had support in regard to academic coursework during the fall semester. This number is in responses to their entire fall semester experience, not just Messina. In the initial Enrichment Session Audit compiled about Fall 2016 Enrichment Sessions, the percentage of working groups that indicated dedicating sessions related to Academic Adjustment dropped from 26% in Fall 2015 to 18% in Fall 2016. This should be an area to further examine this year, particularly if students indicate a desire for more sessions that help with academic transition. It should be noted that when given the opportunity to provide constructive feedback this was not an area that students responded was of strong concern for them.
- The survey presented different opportunities for students to provide qualitative responses. One aspect noted in responses was a desire for more connections of the enrichment session and the course to the Messina theme. Conversely, some student responses provided tangible ways in which the respondent experienced their Messina theme. Compared to surveys in previous years the depth of open-responses was slightly greater and provided more insight into student connections to the theme. This is an area to be examined further in the spring 2017 student survey.

\(^1\) Only students who were 18 years of age or older by 12/1/16 were able to participate in this survey.

\(^2\) Ten of these students opted to not participate in this survey.

\(^3\) Students selected one of the following four choices: “Never, Sometimes (1-2 times), Often (monthly), or Very Often (weekly).”

• 145 (41.08%) indicated that How to Win an Election was a topic in their Messina class beyond the fall orientation session. This was an 18%\(^6\) drop from when this same question was asked about Clybourne Park, the 2015 common text. A possible explanation for this that can be explored further would be how many classes may have instead focused their attention on the 2016 Presidential Election.

• Similar to surveys conducted in 2013-2015, students continue to indicate that the some of the most important lessons they have learned through participating in Messina are lessons around self-awareness and personal growth, connecting to Loyola and campus resources, and connecting with others/understanding others/working with others.

Select Responses to Open-Ended Questions\(^7\)

Lessons Learned During the First Semester

• “An important lesson that I have learned from my Messina is that everyone genuinely has their own stories and life situations that could be vastly different from my own and it is important to respect and understand them just as I respect and understand my own.”

• “I have learned what it means to be part of a community and the ways in which I can help others. I also got to experience Baltimore in a different way that I usually would.”

• “I learned to be an active listener, branch outside my comfort zone and get involved immediately on campus, reach out and ask for help either through my evergreen in regards to academic advice, finding places, or just needed someone to talk to privately about something, and just be myself.”

• “In one of our enrichment sessions, a very valuable phrasing to what it meant to tell your own story from an invited guest professor gave me a greater appreciation for what the theme was trying to encourage. I now feel as though it is my duty to tell my story, though listening to other stories is also important, the real eye-opening detail learned is that my own story is not insignificant and is not just an experience of self discovery, but is also that of having the confidence to own my history and choices.”

• “I learned that participation is important and that sometimes you can learn more from others than just the material of the course”

• “That stating your opinion is encouraged and disagreeing can be a good thing.”

First Year Experience Comments

• “Although I felt that I had support in regard to my academic coursework, I think it came from many professors and resources at the school not just my Messina. Messina helped me feel like I belonged at Loyola because it was a smaller group of students that I have been able to get to know.”

• “Messina has provided me with many friends and a community in a place that was unfamiliar to me at the beginning of the term. I am thankful for Messina because it surrounded me with people who truly cared about me at such a hard transition time.”

• “I thought that Messina would be a great idea, but I think its level of effectiveness is dependent on the chemistry of the evergreen and the group and belief that messina is worth it’s time and putting effort into. If the participants didn’t want to participate it seems a waste of time.”

• “There was not a lot of opportunity to meet new people after the first few weeks of school. Since I only met a few friends at orientation/in my messina I didn’t feel very connected to the Loyola community initially. It would be nice to have more campus activities that focus on meeting new people. I am not a partying type and it seemed to me that most of the kids in my dorm/floor were very connected through parties. More opportunities like the options club (which I didn’t find until Nov) would be great!”

\(^6\) The response to this question about Clybourne Park was 206 (59.20%) with \(n=348\).

\(^7\) More details about these questions and responses can be found on pages 7-12 of this document.
Critical Understanding Comments

- “I appreciate the fact that Messina brings things beyond the classroom and encourages students to be involved around Campus and engage with others. Messina has taught me that the learning does not stop when you leave class but is something we should always be engaging in with each other.”
- “All of my classes really connected in terms of the content that I was learning in my classes. I did find additional resources for assignments, but Messina did not really tell me about them, I found out on my own before coming to school so I already knew about the options for help before becoming a part of the Messina program. I have not really found study groups, but that could be because I am naturally introverted and not because of Messina so when I do study with a group, it’s normally with my roommates who I have no choice, but to be with sometimes. I don’t really discuss my Messina theme with my friends or classmates mostly because I don't really have conversations about a ton of academic things, but when I do it's mostly on specific content not the overall theme of some of my classes.”
- “During a lot of my classes, examples being philosophy and sociology, a lot of what we learned in those classes carried over between each other and I was able to use each courses information for my assignments. Most of the resources I needed to complete the assignments were already given to me by the professors. It was mostly during finals that I developed study groups with my peers on class material, maybe before some tests. After Messina I would most likely talk about what we did with my friends and family.”
- “The actual themes of our Messina groups (The Visionary, Stories We Tell, etc.) was actually given next to no emphasis on our lives or classes once welcome week was over. I think students would benefit from a little more emphasis on theme incorporated naturally into our current events and activities. Nothing too much like a summer camp, but enough that we wouldn't forget the themes exist. I think if done right, this would help us feel some solidarity for others who share our theme, interest in how the other students are experiencing college through the lens of their theme, and hopefully a greater incentive to take pride in our education.”

Positive/ Constructive Feedback

- “Messina really made me feel that I had people in my corner this semester even though I haven’t had the greatest transition to college. I think that in the future to make Messina better, there could be more talk or events that relate the class and everything to the overall Messina theme since there was not a lot of connection between the them and he things we talked about this semester.”
- “I think it would be interesting to do activities with other Messina themes, to see how they overlap and interconnect.”
- “Personally, I think some aspects of messina were a little "heavy". I understand that the purpose is to create a safe group of people to help you through your first year and to discuss " heavy" topics, but personally it is hard for me to really connect and feel truly comfortable with a group of people with out any "fun" and lighthearted moment. I think incorporating some lighter activities would really benefit and help bring everyone closer together.”
- “I really enjoyed being a part of a group that I knew I could be comfortable with and they wouldn’t judge me. It was so nice knowing that this group of people is going to be with you the whole year and that there will be familiar faces in the spring semester. Another thing I love about Messina is living with most of the people in my class. It was so convenient to ask questions about homework and form study groups because we all lived close together.”
- “My Evergreen was absolutely wonderful. I felt that I could speak to her about matters pertaining to school and even things in my personal life. That connection was authentic and I was able to be as close as I chose. I am very thankful to have experienced the effects of the Messina program through such a wonderful Evergreen leader.”

- Not sure if it was my theme or if everyone experienced what I was.
- The unit in which we described how authors and poets can be considered literary visionaries through their writings helped me to better understand my Messina theme.

Messina: General Feedback

Question: If interested, please use this space to add any other positive or constructive feedback about your Messina experience this semester. (n=82)

Positive Comments (49 responses)

- Working group members (21)
- Class relationships: including friends that were made and how the group came together (15)
- Exploring Baltimore: including sessions related to navigating Baltimore (7)
- Helped with transition to college (5)
- Their specific Messina course: included that the class was helpful for their major (3)
- Living in proximity with students in their Messina course: aided in the development of study groups, homework help (2)
- Other reasons: expanded personal perspectives, being with the same group for the entire year, benefit of Welcome Weekend, date/time of the enrichment session, generally fun (5)

Constructive Comments: (24 responses)

- Improving enrichment sessions- comments included the following areas: (15)
  - Incorporating more practical topics (2)
  - Scheduling more trips/outside events (6)
  - Teambuilding sessions (2)
  - Connections to Messina course (1)
  - Considerations on when to best engage in “heavy” topic discussions- group rapport may not be there. (1)
  - Helpful to give context of what to expect in Messina/purpose of course and enrichment from the beginning, as well as communicating planned trips/campus events earlier- not last minute. (3)
- More incorporation of the theme: including with the class and giving students activities around multiple themes. (4)
- Other reasons: having all Messina courses fulfill core requirements, better academic advising, more connections between Messina course, more activities during Welcome Weekend with students not just in your Messina class, detrimental having too many athletes from the same team in one class (5)

Negative Perspectives/Experience (22)

- Enrichment not helpful: the majority of these responses didn’t give specific reasons. For those that did, some of the context provided were feelings it was a waste of time/i.e. being able to instead use it for studying, or feelings that it was too basic. (14)
- Dissatisfaction with unengaged peers: complaints that class dynamics made experience not great (4)
- Scheduling conflicts with Messina course and other classes the student wanted to take (2)

28 The numbers below are greater than 82 because some responses covered both positive, constructive, and negative areas/experiences.
• Other reasons: general dislike of the program (without context) and feeling that housing by theme isn’t significant (2)

Appendix C: Messina Enrichment Session Audit Information

Messina

Fall 2016 Enrichment Session Plan Audit\(^{29}\)

In an effort to better understand what topics and campus resources were being discussed during Messina enrichment sessions, the Messina Office asked that Mentors compile and code their enrichment sessions. To date, 59 (out of 72) fall Messina sections submitted enrichment session audits. For those 59 sections, Messina working groups planned and implemented 707 enrichment sessions. The average number of Enrichment Sessions per section was 12.2 (as compared to 13.2 for fall 2015) and the range of sessions scheduled for each section was 9-16. The average number of hours spent in Messina enrichment activities was 18.5 hours and the range of hours was 13 to 26. Messina guidelines call for 10-12 enrichment sessions that reflect 15-25 hours of interaction with students each semester. A complete accounting of all 72 fall sections will be made available in the Annual Report.

Enrichment Session Content Areas

Content of individual enrichment session was coded and assigned to five main categories: Academic Adjustment, Social Adjustment/Team-Building, Reflection & Discernment Activities, Theme & Course Enrichment (Including Messina Theme-Wide Events), and Service Activities. Some Mentors reported that an individual session fell into two distinct categories. Compared to fall 2015, Messina the content of Messina sections included more theme and course enrichment and reflection and discernment activities. Social and Academic adjustment content was not as prevalent.

\(^{29}\) This document was prepared by Michael Puma on 1/6/17.
In fall 2016, over half of enrichment sessions were developed by working groups. The remainder of enrichment sessions were comprised of Messina Modules, Messina theme-wide and other campus events and off-campus outings. On average, Messina sections took 2 trips and attended one Messina theme-wide event. This data is consistent with 2015 levels and is in line with Messina expectations for working groups.

Messina Theme-Wide Events
Messina sponsored or co-sponsored twenty-five campus events this semester. In general, the events that were co-sponsored or originated from a Messina faculty member were more successful. 43 of the 59 sections that reported information asked their students to attend a particular event as a class. The remaining sections provided a menu of options for students to select from. Shuttles to Baltimore neighborhoods were popular. The Hampdenfest shuttle was our most popular program of the semester.
