Loyola University Maryland offers GMAT Review Courses throughout the year. The GMAT is designed to help graduate schools of business assess the qualifications of applicants for advanced study in business and management. The test consists of three separately timed sections: one 30-minute writing section and two 75-minute multiple choice sections designed to measure general verbal, mathematical, analytical writing and integrative analysis skills. This course prepares the student for each section of the test. Students will be using online instructional materials during the class, also to be used for home study. Students must have a laptop, tablet or smartphone to access the site. The test is only available in a computer-adaptive test (CAT) format; students may receive free tutorial software upon registering for the GMAT test to help them become accustomed to the CAT format. To schedule an appointment to sit for the GMAT test, please visit www.mba.com. It is recommended that students wait until they have completed at least two weeks of the course before they schedule a day to take the GMAT.
