or written permission of department chair

DESCRIPTION

This project course is taught by a professional audio engineer/producer. Students work in teams to pitch, research, record, and produce finished radio documentaries about Baltimore neighborhoods for broadcast and web stream-ing by Loyola's student radio station WLOY. Ideal for students with basic audio production skills from the prerequisite course CM351 or other experience, who have the ability to work collaboratively in the field and who are motivated to pursue a high standard of excellence in production.
