LOYOLA BRINGS ABOUT THIS SENSE OF COMMUNITY AND ACCEPTS ALL—NO MATTER WHAT RACE, RELIGION, GENDER, SEXUALITY, AND/OR BACKGROUND PEOPLE COME FROM. THERE IS A PIECE OF LOYOLA FOR EVERYONE.

—I NOW CONSIDER LOYOLA AND BALTIMORE MY SECOND HOME. THE PEOPLE I’VE MET HERE ARE MORE THAN JUST FRIENDS; THEY ARE FAMILY. Every class I’ve taken has taught me a new perspective and connected to different areas of my life. I genuinely feel like a better version of myself because of this school. I could not have asked for a better college experience.

ACADEMICS

At Loyola, no one has the same experience, because here you are known personally and taught as an individual.

Academics

There’s a reason a Jesuit liberal arts education has been around for five centuries: It works. Characterized by intellectual excellence, critical understanding, leadership, promotion of justice, diversity, and wellness, and a constant challenge to improve, Loyola’s distinctly taught Jesuit approach to education helps you master the tools and develop the traits you’ll need to thrive today, tomorrow, and 20 years from now, in the future world of work. And in fact, these characteristics are the very qualities that employers, our communities, and society seek in individuals.

Nothing sets your Loyola experience apart more than the role mentorship and guidance play in your experience.

In fact, few things will transform your life as much as your relationships with your professors. They are your mentors, coaches, personal advisors, and champions. Your confidants when you need a listening ear. Your compass when you lose your way. They know what you’re capable of—sometimes even better than you do—and are personally invested in your success. Their insights, guidance, encouragement, and faith in your potential will stay with you for the rest of your life...

The literature professor who recognizes your talent and encourages you to become a writer. The chemistry professor who sees your potential and invites you to conduct research with her. The writing professor whose past life as a war reporter inspires your interest in journalism. The political science professor who connects you to a life-changing internship at the Baltimore Sun.

You are not like anyone else. Your academic experience shouldn’t be like anyone else’s. Our faculty will help you find your passion, gain the confidence to pursue it, and build the skills and experience to thrive in your field.

At Loyola, no one has the same experience, because here you are known personally and taught as an individual.

A tradition of excellence in undergraduate and graduate business programs has led to the Sellinger School of Business and Management being recognized internationally for its scholarship, ethical leadership, history, and reputation. The Sellinger School is accredited by AACSB—international in both business and accounting—a distinction held by only 5% of business schools worldwide.

You will learn from renowned faculty and executives in residence who bring their industry experience and expertise to the classroom. Beyond your courses, you’ll engage with local businesses and organizations through internships, field study, service-learning, and community outreach. You’ll participate in study tours, research, capstone projects, and academic competitions. You’ll network with Loyola alumni and business organizations around the country and the world with which Sellinger has long-standing relationships. You’ll attend lectures and workshops featuring thought leaders in business, innovation, and entrepreneurship and get involved in student-led organizations that afford applications of classroom learning and leadership experience.

The social sciences include the academic disciplines concerned with society and the relationships among individuals within a society. A division of Loyola College, social sciences are an integral part of Loyola’s comprehensive Jesuit liberal arts education and are comprised of five departments that promote learning, service, scholarship, critical thinking, and the development of leadership skills. You’ll learn from dedicated expert faculty who are actively engaged in research that advances their fields. Faculty who invite and work alongside students in their research and scholarship. Faculty who are involved with community and professional service activities, regularly integrating them into the classes they teach and affording opportunities for meaningful service and field experience to their students.

Numerous internship and clinical placement options to gain practical experience in your desired field for academic credit.

ARMY ROTC Reserve Officers’ Training Corps
This four-year college course is designed to provide students with the necessary skills and leadership training to become officers in the U.S. Army and is completed part-time alongside the academic curriculum. ROTC graduates go on to serve as Second Lieutenants in the U.S. Army (on either Active duty or in the Reserves) or in the National Guard.

PRE-LAW PROGRAM
This advisory program guides, supports, and prepares students of every major who intend to attend law school. Loyola seniors average a 90% law school acceptance rate, with several students accepted in Top 25 programs each year and a significant percentage accepted in Top 50 programs.

LOYOLA.EDU/LOYOLACOLLEGE
The School of Education prides itself on outstanding teacher preparation based on the Jesuit traditions of academic excellence, diversity, promotion of justice, and leadership. You will benefit from learning in small classes from dedicated faculty who are experts in their respective education specialties, as well as through service-learning, field and clinical experiences in Baltimore-area public and parochial schools, student organizations, in-class speakers, and special on-campus events. Together, these experiences create a robust curriculum and a holistic learning environment that prepare you for successful admission to graduate programs or to launch your teaching career.

Loyola offers four pathways to teacher certification within the School of Education: the Elementary Education major; dual certification with the Elementary Education major and Special Education minor; the Secondary Education minor; and a B.A./B.S. Master of Arts in Teaching, which provides teaching certification through a five-year program resulting in a bachelor’s degree within your area of major and a Master of Arts in Teaching (MAT).

Our programs are approved by the Maryland State Department of Education. Graduates who complete program requirements and successfully pass licensure exams are eligible for teacher certification in Maryland and in other states with reciprocity agreements.

Global awareness is a hallmark of Jesuit education. Studying abroad engages students in a life-changing experience that will forever alter the way you see and process the world around you. You’ll be exposed to diverse cultures and perspectives, and experience unparalleled learning opportunities—experiences that will enrich your life and differentiate you as a graduate.

Many of my professors at Loyola have been some of my biggest advocates and supporters, and I wouldn’t trade them for the world.

—Grace, Elementary Education major and Special Education minor from Bel Air, MD
YOUR FIRST-YEAR LIVING LEARNING EXPERIENCE

MESSINA

All first-year students participate in Messina, a program that creates the foundation for your success at Loyola by integrating your academic and student life experiences; creating a network of people for you to connect, learn, live, and explore with; and providing the resources you’ll need to navigate and make the most of all four years.

You’ll take two linked seminar courses exclusively designed for first-year students. These courses include academic lectures and programs, off-campus excursions that allow you to get to know Baltimore and your surroundings, and enrichment seminars on topics such as time management, study skills, and leadership development. You’ll benefit from an upper-class mentor who is assigned to your Messina group to answer questions about college life, Baltimore, academics, and campus. Your professors will serve as your advisors, supporting and guiding you not only through course registration and your first college exams, but helping you make decisions about your academic path and unlock extracurricular opportunities that match your passions and enhance your studies.

HONORS PROGRAM

High-achieving students can enroll in the university’s Honors Program. Taught by Loyola’s most distinguished faculty, Honors classes are small and are combined with an extensive program of excursions and events, discussions and lectures, and extracurricular enrichment.

CPAMS SCHOLARS

This program features an interdisciplinary course of study in computer science, physics, mathematics, statistics, and data science, and offers need-based scholarship opportunities in these fields. Students benefit from learning in a cohort and from faculty mentorship and opportunities for competitive internships, networking, and career development in STEM fields beyond Loyola.

SELLINGER SCHOLARS

This four-year honors program in business administration is designed to prepare high-achieving, highly-motivated students for roles of business leadership and service. Through the Sellinger Scholars Program, classroom education is augmented through unique opportunities to interact with business professionals and community leaders, and it is completed with skills-based learning.

RESEARCH AND FELLOWSHIPS

Each year students receive competitive national fellowships and scholarships to further their academic pursuits, to conduct research with our expert faculty, and to undertake independent study.

MY MESSINA EXPERIENCE WAS GREAT. I LOVED IT.

Messina helped me acclimate during my first year, and it was so nice to see familiar faces in two classes (one in fall, one in spring). The extra hour of enrichment each week was also helpful; we would cover topics like registration for classes, housing, and our experiences at Loyola so far.

One of my favorite memories is when my art history professor invited our class to her house for dinner one night towards the end of the fall semester. That was a great experience to connect with her and with my peers, and it really made me feel like I was part of the Loyola community.

—Alicia, Business Economics and Spanish double major from Scottsdale, AZ

EXPLORE MESSINA
The Greyhound Nation and our physical campus anchored in Baltimore offer the perfect environment for students who seek to be vital and integral members of their college community. Ours is a talented, driven, diverse, intellectually curious community where you’ll feel inspired, encouraged, and empowered to put your all into everything you do: in class, on stage, on the athletic field, on campus, and out in the world.

With just under 4,000 undergraduates, Loyola is big enough to be rich in opportunity—and small enough for these opportunities to be highly accessible to each student. You will feel comfortable taking risks, asking bold questions, and trying new things. And you will forge deep, meaningful relationships with your peers, professors, coaches, classmates, and neighbors. In fact, you’re likely to impact them as much as they impact you.

The transition from high school to college can be tough. But at Loyola, you have something that makes that transition much smoother: a place to call home that actually feels like one.

Part of that is our incredible housing. In fact, Loyola has been ranked in the top 20 of The Princeton Review’s national list of 384 schools for “Best College Dorms” for 10 years running.

- 17 residence halls that combine comfort and convenience with community
- Spacious, modern, fully-furnished
- Double-room and apartment-style housing
- Kitchens
- Heating and air conditioning
- Laundry facilities
- Vending machines
- Common rooms
- Recreation areas
- Computer labs and study spaces

You’ll enjoy fresh, made-from-scratch, healthy meals that focus on local seasonal items, with selections that change throughout the day—and you can choose from multiple meal plans. Think: handmade pizza, cage-free eggs, fresh pastries baked on site, and locally-sourced bread and produce. Can’t find something you like on campus? You can easily order from Grubhub, our campus partner for food delivery.

And because we believe in brain food for everybody, Loyola’s Dining Services adheres to Culinary Gold Standards and is committed to supporting students for whom nutrition and dietary restrictions are a concern. Wellness programs featuring nutrition education and cooking classes are also offered throughout the year for students.

So, bring on tomorrow. Bring on rising to the challenge. Bring on creating the world you imagine. More than ready. Loyola Ready.

LOYOLA READY

Loyola alumni are leading and serving in sectors and in cities around the globe (and even beyond). What’s more, both alumni and employers have singled out the distinctive Jesuit aspects of Loyola graduates as primary engines of their enduring success, both professionally and personally. Ultimately, the Loyola experience is about bringing together all the pieces of your potential—your intellect, interests, talents, personality—and transforming them into one balanced and perfect whole. You’ll graduate a confident leader who can adapt and thrive in an ever-changing world with a solid foundation to succeed not only in your first career, but in your second and even third... and in every aspect of your life.

WHY IS LOYOLA WORTH IT?

BECAUSE WE BELIEVE A JESUIT EDUCATION BEST PREPARES STUDENTS TO LEARN, LEAD, AND SERVE IN OUR DIVERSE AND CHANGING WORLD.

AND WE BELIEVE A JESUIT EDUCATION IS BEST ACQUIRED AT LOYOLA UNIVERSITY MARYLAND.

WHY?

EXPERIENCE

Students at Loyola are individually taught—and taught as individuals. Deep, meaningful, and sustained faculty mentorship and guidance is the essence of a Loyola education.

ACCESSIBILITY

A Jesuit education is an active transformation. In order to benefit fully from it, it has to be directly taught, personally experienced, deeply understood, and put into living practice. Furthermore, students need consistent, individual guidance to connect academics to aspirations and passions to careers.

Loyola deploys its full resources to ensure that these transformative experiences are accessible to each student—wherever their minds and hearts lead, from the day they arrive on our campus to the moment they set foot in the world.

RELATIONSHIPS

Beyond academic rigor, the cornerstone of intellectual life at Loyola is relationships. Relationships that are founded in the guidance and encouragement of tenured professors, dedicated administrators, coaches, and advisors who are invested in every student’s success. Relationships that push students to the limits of their intellect and imagination. Relationships that demonstrate how to absorb, engage with, and respond to new knowledge and experiences. Relationships that teach them how to face today’s hurdles—while preparing them to leap over them on their own in the future. Ask any Loyola graduate what made the difference in their college experience, and they’ll likely share a name and a story of a meaningful relationship with a faculty member, administrator, or coach who became a mentor, a trusted confidant, a friend.

OUTCOMES

The outcomes bear out the promise of a Loyola University Maryland degree. Within six to nine months of graduation, 98% of our graduates are employed or in graduate or professional school, and the mid-career salaries of our alumni trend more than 30% higher than those of graduates of competitor institutions. More importantly, both alumni and employers have singled out the distinctive Jesuit aspects of Loyola graduates as primary engines of their enduring success, both professionally and personally.

THESE ARE THE VERY FEATURES, ACCORDING TO THE FINDINGS OF A RECENT GALLUP-PURDUE REPORT, THAT GRADUATES IDENTIFY AS DETERMINING WHETHER COLLEGE WAS, IN FACT, WORTH IT.

YOU WANT TO INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE.

WE’LL DO EVERYTHING WE CAN TO MAKE THAT POSSIBLE.

We understand that funding your education requires a significant financial commitment from you and your family. We also know that applying for financial aid can be confusing and frustrating. We are here to help. Our financial aid team is dedicated to helping you navigate the application process and committed to making our private Jesuit education affordable and accessible for all students.

Loyola University Maryland is recognized as a TOP PERFORMER ON SOCIAL MOBILITY by U.S. News & World Report (2020) for enrolling and graduating underrepresented students who are Pell Grant recipients.
Our admission process—like our academic philosophy and our graduates—is atypical. We take a comprehensive approach and consider the whole person. One. Student. At. A. Time. Every applicant receives a thorough individual evaluation by the admission committee. Taking this holistic approach, we seek students who are best suited to take advantage of everything Loyola has to offer. We consider academic merit as well as all other aspects of your preparation to handle what will be asked of you once you enroll at Loyola University Maryland. That may be extracurricular involvement, athletics, leadership, service or community engagement, or something totally unique to you. This interest in the whole person is why we adopted our test-optional admission policy more than a decade ago.

FIRST-YEAR APPLICANTS
Loyola offers two non-binding admission programs for students applying directly from high school: Early Action and Regular Decision. We also offer a spring semester entry term for first-year students who have not completed any college coursework after high school graduation. For additional information about the first-year student application process, visit loyola.edu/apply-now.
