

As part of the Loyola community, we are conscious of the indeterminable number of events and situations that occur across the globe and have a detrimental impact on our students, campus and beyond. We are currently aware of the devastating impact of the atrocities occurring in the Ukraine. Whether or not these types of events garner media attention, impact each of us directly or are part of a greater human struggle, we are committed to helping each other navigate through difficult times and wish to extend our support to those who may need it.
