Overview
Overview

• The Sellinger Applied Portfolio (SAP) provides undergraduate and graduate students an opportunity to manage a pool of institutional capital within set investment parameters. The SAP allows students to learn and apply principles of asset allocation, diversification, macroeconomic theory, econometrics, fundamental research, and risk management to a pool of $500,000.

• Students may invest in U.S. listed equity securities (including ADRs) and ETFs.

• Summer 2020 Term: May 11 – July 8
• We sought overweights in higher-quality portions of the market (IT, Health Care)

• Cyclical sectors (Energy, Industrials, Materials, Consumer Discretionary) were targeted as underweights due to their economic sensitivity

• The chart to the right captures the position strategies agreed upon during the first class meeting
Our investment decisions were made in accordance with the investment policy statement set forth by the University.

The following slides will dive into the portfolio’s positioning, performance, and key considerations during the Summer 2020 term.

All portfolio data is as of June 30, 2020 unless otherwise noted.
Economic Conditions
Key Factors

• Several macroeconomic, geopolitical, and public health factors underpinned our investment thinking during the term
  • COVID-19’s impact (duration, recovery)
  • 2020 Presidential election
  • China/ trade negotiations

• The following slides will delve into these factors, as well as related (and broader) macroeconomic trends
COVID-19 at Large

- Over 11.3M confirmed cases as of July 5, 2020
  - EMEA: 3.996M
  - USA: 2.852M
  - APAC: 1.501M
- Its impact on global supply chains, capital markets, and employment was (and remains) significant.
Market Has Been a Roller Coaster

- Market volumes became (and remain) incredibly elevated since late February 2020
- Since low (March 23), S&P 500 is up 40.7%
Monetary and Fiscal Policy
To The Rescue (Sort Of)

House Narrowly Passes $3 Trillion Aid Package
Approval caps weeklong effort by Democratic leaders to quash rebellions by wings of party

• CARES Act provided much needed support to American public
  • Direct payments
  • Aid for state and local government
• Congress currently weighing need for second wave of fiscal stimulus
Monetary and Fiscal Policy
To The Rescue (Sort Of)

- Federal Reserve slashes benchmark Federal Funds rate to zero
- Acknowledges long-term difficulty for economic conditions
- Stabilization of capital markets
  - ETF purchases
  - Corporate credit purchases
  - Municipal liquidity facility
  - Main Street lending
Yield Curves Have Bear Steepened

Long-term rates have risen faster than short-term rates

March 9 (10 Yr. Treasury Low)

July 5
China Trade Tensions Continue...

- Continued concerns over Phase One trade deal loom
- China notes that U.S. meddling in Hong Kong and other issues could impact Chinese goods listed under Phase One
China Trade Tensions Continue…

U.S. Moves to Cut Off Chip Supplies to Huawei

New restriction stops foreign semiconductor manufacturers whose operations use U.S. software and technology from shipping products to Huawei without first getting a license from U.S. officials

- Trump administration attempted to block Huawei from accessing intermediate goods leveraging U.S. software and technology
- Ultimately, the Commerce Department amended these efforts to allow for continued development, maintenance of critical 5G networks
...While It Slashes Its Growth Target

- Country does not set a hard target for growth
- Policy efforts are focused at stimulating and renewing employment and investment
- Target figure for budget deficit: 3.6% of GDP
Amidst Pandemic, an Election Looms

- Concerns regarding health care policy, taxation, economic equality loom amidst global health crisis
- Importantly, these topics—among others—are not unique to this election. Typical with regime change
Polls Show a Regime Change is Likely

Biden (Blue) has an over 60% implied probability of winning the 2020 Election
Unemployment Remains Elevated, But is Falling

- June 2020: 11.1%
  - April: 14.7%
  - May: 13.3%
- Questions about quality of employment (seasonal) and stickiness in hard-hit industries (restaurants) remain.
- Tough to garner major insights, especially with unemployment subsidy
Growth, Inflation Are Expected to Remain Soft Over Long Term

- 10-Year Treasury-TIPS Spread shows tepid long-term inflation, an indication of lackluster growth
- Hopes for “V-Shaped” recover remain, but rebound has slowed according to yield spreads
Sector Summary
Throughout the semester, the class decided on target weights of the portfolio by the S&P 500 sector. During the first class of the semester, we refined our course of action and made adjustments until the end of the course June 30, 2020.
The Consumer Discretionary sector is composed of companies that primary business is the sale of non-essential goods or services to consumers. The companies in this sector typically are among the most sensitive to economic cycles. The S&P 500 portion of this index, ticker IXY, is composed of 63 companies including various retailers (online, clothing, home, discount) as well as restaurants, automotive, entertainment, hotel and travel.

- Leaders of the sector:
  - Amazon, McDonald’s, Nike, Lowe’s, Starbucks, Booking Holdings (Priceline), TJ Max, Target, and Dollar General

- Portfolio Owns:
  - Amazon & Ball Corporation

- Performance:
  - Outperformed the S&P 500 over the short and long term by a modest margin.

- News:
  - Strong Retail sales
Consumer Staples

The Consumer Stables Sector contains companies that manufacturers and distributes food, beverages and tobacco. It also comprises companies that produce non-durable household goods and personal products. Finally, the Consumer Stables sector contains companies involved in food and drug retailing as well as consumer super centers. The Consumer Staples Sector consists of six industries. These are identified as Beverages, Food and Staples Retailing, Food Products, Household Products, Personal Products, and Tobacco. Companies within Consumer Stables Sector market and sale essential products the consumer is unable or unwilling to go without, regardless of their financial situation. Stocks of companies within this sector are non-cyclical, that is there growth depends little on the current economic situation.

Portfolio Strategy & Composition
Strategy overview

- This class’s session is from May 11th until July 8th. Given we started in the throes of an unprecedented worldwide pandemic, our strategic outlook was different than most previous classes. We will not recount all the variables, but the pandemic, the shutdown of the U.S. economy, the unrelenting volatility consistently at 30+, with tremendous uncertainty led us to the following strategy:
- We would invest the large cash stockpile accumulated in the fund $154,000, approximately 31% of the funds value. Return on cash is virtually nil with present interest rate of returns.
- We would not divest or reinvest in existing portfolio companies, trusting the work of our peers.
- We would recommend strategies in only Growth and Value.
- We were not looking to sell any of our recommendations due to the 8 week class timeframe, and the directive to invest for the long term. We did not see a clear path to a dividend strategy in this environment.
- The following slides identify the screening criteria and positions taken during this summer semester.

Visa Inc. class a/ V
Position (Purchased on 6-22-20)
100 Shares  $19,259.00

• Visa Inc was founded in 1958 as BankAméricard. It is headquartered in Foster City, CA. and currently has 19,500 employees. The IPO for Visa was February 2008 for $44 a share. It’s symbol is V.

• Visa is the world’s largest retail electronic payments network and manages the world’s leading electronic payments brand. Here are the brands and businesses Visa operates; Visa, Visa Electron, PLUS, and Interlink, which are licensed to financial institutions, and multiple payment card types, including credit, debit, prepaid, and commercial payments. Visa enables global commerce. A paramount shift towards electronic payment away from cash is accelerating due to the Covid-19 virus pandemic. Customers and Vendors are concerned cash is a germ carrying mechanism and once cards become the standard payment method, customers will be unlikely to revert.

• In addition, being the dominant worldwide leader presents Visa with revenue growth opportunities from the penetration of card payments into non-traditional categories. Food and drug in particular are industries shifting to e-commerce & electronic payments.
Dollar General Corp. / DG

Position (Purchased on 6-29-20)

110 Shares $20,769.10

- Dollar General was founded in 1939 and is based in Goodlettsville, Tennessee. The company currently has 16,000+ stores and is the leading small box discount retailer of dollar store chain in the United States. It offers a broad array of basic, everyday national brand & private label merchandise. The typical DG store stocks approximately 10,000 different items, including consumables, seasonal, home products, & apparel. Most items have a retail between $1-$10.

- It offers these items to consumers, who are usually low- & middle-income residents of small towns. Better than 70% of their stores serve communities with populations of less than 20,000 residents. DG stores average 10,000 square feet store and their online presence continues to grow, just like their store count, adding over 1000 units in 2019. Revenue growth was 27% in 019 and same store sales were an impressive 3+%.
Phil Knight, a good miler, and Bill Bowerman, a track coach who tinkered with shoe designs, met at the University of Oregon in 1957. The two men formed Blue Ribbon Sports in 1962 in an effort to make quality American running shoes. The company rebranded as NIKE in 1972, named for the Greek goddess of victory. Nike went public in 1980.

Nike, Inc.’s principal business activity is “the design, development and worldwide marketing of high quality footwear, apparel, equipment and accessory products”. Nike sells its products to about 20,000 retail accounts in the US and in approximately 110 countries around the world. Independent contractors manufacture almost all of Nike’s products. Most footwear products are produced outside the United States, while apparel products are produced both in the United States and abroad. Revenues for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1999 were $8.8 billion, compared with $9.6 billion in the previous fiscal year.

Nike footwear is specifically designed for athletic use, placing considerable emphasis on high quality construction and innovative design. However, a large percentage of the products are worn for casual or leisure purposes. Nike markets and sells a wide variety of products, including shoes for running, basketball, cross training, women and children. All of which are currently its top-selling product categories.

  • Impact of COVID restrictions for these companies muted and they recovered quickly
  • Will continue to benefit from the work from home trend
• EPS Growth exceeds S&P: Portfolio tilted towards high growth investments driving ROA, ROE and Yield lower than S&P average
  • Microsoft, Amazon, SalesForce, Facebook, Vertex Pharmaceutical and the Semiconductor and Technology ETF’s have higher EPS growth and will continue to benefit from the stay at home orders justifying the shift to lower ROA and ROA investments.

Although class began on 5/11 the first opportunity to trade was not until 5/18.

- Did not achieve allocation of <5% cash balance until 6/29.

- When comparing the results of this time period Sellinger Applied Portfolio (SAP) performs better.
  - Raw return difference -1.17%.

- Cash drag prevented SAP from fully benefiting from the gains in the market from 5/26 - 6/8.

- Although during this time we did not outperform the market, we believe the portfolio is in a good position to outperform S&P 500 moving forward.
Alpha and Beta

- Regression of daily returns of portfolio shows a historical Beta and Alpha.
- Beta of evolving portfolio over Summer 2020 session is 1.30.
- Alpha very low .02%
- Although portfolio has changed over the course of semester, this is a valuable tool in projecting the future returns of the portfolio based on market performance.

5. Coca-Cola -1.89%
6. Health Care Select Sector SPDR® ETF -0.61%
Overall Return Analysis

- 5 of 6 of the portfolio top performers had benefit of being held when class began allowing more time to apricate.
- Best returns in portfolio are from technology and medical companies that are positioned to thrive in a COVID-19 economy.
- The portfolio worst performers were subject to timing issues with many of the beginning values (5/11) or purchase prices near highs.
- No common sector to tie stock together but COVID-19 may have affected Costco, CocaCola, and Health Care ETF.
- Short time horizon makes overall conclusions from analysis difficult.
Best Returns: Summer 2020 Stocks

- Teladoc is a prime example of effect of timing on the short term returns of the portfolio. First arrow in the chart shows when stock was proposed, second arrow shows when purchase was executed.

- Although these companies did not perform over this time period, they have long-term potential and will likely provide positive returns over a longer time horizon.
Performance Review Conclusions

• Cash drag inherited prevented the portfolio from fully benefitting during ongoing recovery seen in May and early June.

• High Beta suppressed returns when portfolio was nearer fully invested, and the market experienced a downturn in mid-June.

• Short time horizon made results heavily timing dependent when our management was based in value and growth strategies.

• Additions focused on companies that would not be adversely affected by COVID-19 and may benefit from changes in behaviors brought on by the crisis. The management team projects those changes will result in future returns for portfolio.
