Be More Than Just a Number

Class sizes are small and incorporate personalized interaction between students and faculty.

Expand Your Potential in Any Career

Our program prepares you to not only explore new media's role in communication disciplines, including journalism, public relations, advertising, social media, and marketing, but also thrive in any field you work in—from music, to healthcare, to the non-profit sector.

Throughout my program, I've felt like the faculty were my teammates. They are collaborators and facilitators in my education rather than lecturers. There is genuine care for my success and well-being.
